Unmaking A Man

Spartanburg Herald.

We gaze in wonder on the marvels of a great city, on the stately ocean greyhound, on the speeding "flyer" and all such achievements of man, but suppose for an instant that man himself were suddenly to vanish.

key to it all. You must first make men — men who can see visions, comprehend ways and means, resolve to achieve and faithfully co-operate to a common end.

Whatever goes to the unmaking of a man, beclouding his vision, weakening his vigor, unfitting him for his part is a blow at all on which we hose our pride as a race and our trying so hard to make men that it cuts to the quick to see the unmaking of men. He that goes about destroying men for private gain is unsupposed.

thing we are proud of and every hope we count on for the future.

Here is this city of Spartanburg.

We have been proud of it in the past. We cherish great hopes of it in the future. Its homes, its churches, its schools, its colleges are all striving to make men and woman such as will count in the days to come. There is no nobler work. Only as this work goes on to complete fruition may we goes on to complete fruition may we goes on to complete fruition may we not complete fruition may we goes on to complete fruition may we goes

Such men surely love themselves and their own purposes better than humanity, better than their country, tected children. If this be not a true bill it would be simply to tell their fellow citizens in the open that they propose, if entrusted with office, to cut down the vicious growths in our city and keep on cutting them down though they grow up again as weeds will grow. Since they decline to promise anything, it is left to every citizen who does mean to have a city worthy of his self-respect and of his home to choose such candidate as by plain words or past record are pledged to give the city a government that cooperates with the forces making men and suppresses the forces unmaking men.

leaving all these things to stand as they are. Instantly they would become mere impediments upon Nature's path and she would begin to remove them silently and swiftly.

They are great, but there is a greater than they—the power that created them and uses them at will. This power is man, gifted with the eye to see in visions what has never yet been seen by flesh, with the mind to master all ways and means and with the tenacity of purpose and the all into one tremendous all-conquering constructive force.

YORK COUNTY FAIR.

Big Plans Being Laid for the Exhibition to be Held in Rock Hill.

Special to The News.

Rock Hill, Oct. 6 .- A special train Rock Hill, Oct. 6.—A special train from Blacksburg to Rock Hill and return each day during the York County Fair and Winthrop Home Institute has been secured. This with special rates granted by the railroad insures a much larger atten-dance than there would have been otherwise. The committee in charge of the fair are expeting from 5,000 to 10,000 people daily provided there is fair weather.

Each mail brings in its full amount of applications for entries of exhibits. Exhibits in the live stock department will be double to what was at first anticipated, and additional cattle sheds are being erected.. A number of entries in the field crops and horticultural departments is taking possession of society, and this highly encouraging. Degenerates

Spartanburg Herald.

Out of only twenty-six letters in the alphabet millions of words can be made. Similarly out of comparatively a small number of distinct ele-ments of human character millions of characters can be compounded. Among these possible elements of character some are noble and some are ignoble, some make for serength and some for weakness, and so on.

In the vast majority of men there is an average commingling of good and bad, so that they offer no mark-ed exception either way. But here and there nature chooses all the finer qualities for one and the same personality, giving us a Washington or a Lee. Then, on the other hand, she turns out unfortunately other indi-viduals compounded of nothing but the worst elements of character. Re-deeming attributes that might tone up the character at some point seem altogether absent. These are degenerates and a baffling problem they are to society.

You cannot reform them, for there is no foundation of moral sensibility to work upon. Just to put them behind bars and keep them there for life as a protection to society seems brutal and, besides, is expensive. Though they are distinct instances of "the unfit," such as are soon eliminated in other levels of life by the struggle for existence, society can never give itself to any policy of deliberately putting out of the way such individuals, so it is a hard case and puzzles our wisest and best think-

One conclusion, however, is slowly prevented from breeding after their partment is certain, as the interest is intense, considering the fact that this is the first fair and that there is no permanent organization. Scores of people from Chester, Lancaster, Cherokee, and adjoining counties have announced their intention of coming. Many from adjoining counties have sent in notices to the effect that they will have exhibits, hieffy in the live stock department. The fact that flights will be given adjuby a noted aviator adds considerably to the interest, and the flying machine alone will bring thousands. BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE.

If you have a gray-haired mother In the old home far away, Sit down and write the letter You put off day by day. Don't wait until her tired steps Reach heaven's pearly gate,

But show her that you think of her-Before it is too late. If you've a tender message Or a loving word to say, Don't wait until you forget it, But whisper it today.

Who knows what bitter memories May haunt you if you wait, So make the loved one happy Before it is too late.

We live best in the present,

The future is unknown; Tomorrow is a mystery, Today is all our, own The chance that fortune lends us May vanish while we wait, So spend life's richest treasures Before it is too late.

The tender word unspoken. The letter never sent, The long forgotten message, The wealth of love unsent.
